THE CENTRE DRAMA GROUP SOCIAL CENTRE - PARK LANE - POYNTON

We are an entirely new Amateur Dramatic Society, whose aim is to provide the best in entertainment for the Theatregoers of Poynton and district, and incidentally to have ourselves a lot of fun in the process.

We feel that more and more people today are tiring of the passive type of entertainment and are turning to the "live" theatre.

There can be no doubt that in Amateur Dramatics there is an involvement that many people seek. Whether as an actor, back stage staff, or that most essential of ingredients, THE AUDIENCE, one quickly feels part of an exciting happening.

We hope you will come along in any of these roles to which you feel most suited.

Our meetings are on Mondays and Thursdays at the Centre at

Our very first production will be the comedy "ON MONDAY NEXT" by Philip King. This play is a little different from the ordinary and we are confident that you will enjoy seeing it as much as we are enjoying rehearsals

The dates for your Diary are May 5th/8th.

We are looking forward to making your acquaintance with great

Did you know?

At one time Poynton had the largest coalfield in Cheshire, with 74 pits! Coalmining ceased in 1935 and all the pits are now capped off.

BLACK OUTLOOK FOR 25 CHESHIRE MINERS

A crowd of black-faced colliers came A crowd of black-laced collers came clattering down a country lane near Poynton (Cheshire) yesterday afternoon carrying their snap cans and other paraphernalia of the pit.

They looked grim and serious, for they were bringing their snap cans home for the last time.

the last time.

Poynton Pit has finished, and the lane, along which generations of colliers have tramped to and from work, will know happy coal-blackened faces no more.

All that remains to be done is to clear up, dismantle, and demolish, and in a few months desolation will start to creep like a canker over the colliery premises which have provided work for the villagers and coal for the district for more than 150 years.

About 250 men are affected altogether, and as there is no other industrial concern in the district into which they might be absorbed, their outlook is black.

Old Poynton Village

You found out at the Woodside trail point that Poynton Village centre used to be higher up London Road, where Vicarage Lane joins. Here is an 1875 Ordnance Survey map showing the old village

POYNTON: A PLEASANT AND PROSPEROUS VILLAGE.

As a rule, colliery villages are unsightly. More often than otherwise their presence is indicated by hillocks of dull debris and inseparable from coal. repel rather than attract. Not so Poynton. The traveller passing on the railway would never dream that he is in the vicinity of coalpits. Only when the visitor gets near railway crossing on the Stockport and Macclesfield road is the black diamond sugested to him. The pits themselves are hidden by trees, and only appear in the far background after careful investigation. The general aspect is that of a pleasant neighourhood, bespeaking a prosperous village community. The oldest portion is known as "The Village," and consists of a row of colour-washed cottages, which look picturesque against the well-grown trees opposite, forming a fringe to one side of the lake. Here and there are better-class villas, agreeable surroundings, and rows of well-built and comfortable-looking cottages, each with its bit of garden; in fact, there are gardens everywhere—a highly gratifying feature of the place. A convenient reading-room, well supplied with magazines and newspapers, and decorated with good pictures, is an institution to be proud of. In means of out-door recreation the village is blessed with ample spaces of greensward for cricket, tennis, bowling, and football, such as few places of similar size can boast.

You discovered at the Woodside trail point that there used to be a factory at the point where the 2 inclines meet on Woodside. The building was later taken over by Baxter, Woodhouse & Taylor Ltd. and Windak, and was knocked down in 1990, before the houses on Woodside BAXTER WOO were built.

The map above also shows The Crescent Inn at the top, and the village fountain, which was the village's water source. There was no water supply to the houses throughout the 1700s and villagers had to carry their water from the fountain. Its remains can still be seen in the wall on London Road. In 1880, the houses in the old village were painted yellow, and it was known as the Golden City. It must have looked incredible! The old village was mainly demolished in 1937.

BIRTH OF A SON AND HEIR TO THE HOUSE OF POYNTON.

This happy event occurred to the lady of George John Vernon, Esq. on the 1st instant, at Rowe. On the announcement being made general on Friday, the Stockport parish bells were rung, and the event was relabstand in the nouncement being made general on Friday, the Stockport parish bells were rung, and the event was celebrated in the evening by a convivial party who dined at the Warren-Bulkely Arms. Nearly a century has elapsed since the birth of an heir by lineal descent to these estates. On Monday, an ox weighing between twelve and thirteen scores a quarter (which liad been killed for the occasion on Saturday) was roasted whole, before a grate eight feet long and four feet wide, erected in Poynton Park for the purpose. At each end of the grate two whole sheep were roasted. The roasting of the ox occupied twenty-four hours, having been put down at one o'clock on Monday and taken up at the same hour on Tuesday. He was then placed on a platform and adorned with a large pair of gilded horns, the Poynton band playing "O the Roast Beef of Old England." Twenty-one rounds were at the same time fired from twelve pieces of artillery placed on the distant bill. The work of carving then proceeded, and the meat was distributed to about three thousand persons. The distributions were 1 100 by of bead, 1,000 by, of beef, distributions were, 1,500 lbs. of bread, 1,000 lbs. of beef, 200 lbs. of mutton, 250 lbs. of cheese, and 4,600 quarts of ale! At four o'clock an elegant balloon, about six feet high, was sent up; and in the evening a grand display of fire-works took place in front of the hall, and a beacon of the height of their fact was niled and lighted on the high. the height of thirty feet was piled and lighted on the high-est point of the domain. The blaze of the beacon was seen to great effect throughout all the surrounding district. The bells at Marple rang a merry peal throughout Monday. On Wednesday upwards of one hundred and fifty gentlemen, the tenantry and their friends, dined at the Crescent inn. Another balloon ascent took place, and in the evening the village was brilliantly illuminated, displaying several elegant and appropriate devices, the principal of which was at Mr. Fignis's school, where the letter V, upwards of three feet high, was surmounted by a brilliant star of five feet in diameter, both in small lamps. On Thursday evening the children in Mrs. Warren's Sunday-school, to the number of two hundred and fifty, were great effect throughout all the surrounding district. day-school, to the number of two hundred and fifty, were regaled with tea, buns, and negus. "History", said Henry Ford "is bunk". And he couldn't have been more wrong. History is what makes us what we are. Every generation and every individual stands at the end of a long tradition. We may not like all that the past has done but we owe it a debt of gratitude for the good it has preserved and handed on to us.

tradition. We may not like all that the past has done but we owe it a debt of gratitude for the good it has preserved and handed on to us.

It is to express this gratitude that we are celebrating the centenary of the parish of Poynton.

One of our great traditions in this country is the close connexion between Church and State, between the Christian Faith and the life of the community, it was to keep this tradition alive that we invited the whole of the village to join in making our celebration not just a church affair but a community one.

The response has been wonderful. As the rest of this brochure will make clear, no section of our community is unrepresented in our festival. With such co-operation and enthusiasm it is bound to be a success.

May that co-operation and enthusiasm deepen and grow throughout the next hundred years. As Poynton grows in age and size may the faith and happiness of its people grow too.

POYNTON PEOPLE POYNTON CARRY-ON

This Poynton wears a friendly face
Take a trip around the place
And soon you'll know the reason why,
Soon you'll know the reason why
Many folk have lived and died,
Near where the hills reach to the sky
In Poynton with Worth, in Poynton with Worth.

Chorus: Canal direction, canal direction Pool reflection, road to London Poynton with Worth Poynton with Worth Trains and planes and country lanes Country lanes and trains and planes And people and Poynton people...people

Now as the good Lord surely planned Coal was found beneath this land And back in old Lord Vernon's time Back in old Lord Vernon's time Many men worked down the mine Now they do follow another line In Poynton with Worth, in Poynton with Worth.

Chorus

And if the hills could speak they'd say
They've seen changes ev'ry day
A saga of this century
Saga of this century
Thrice it's size it now must be
Within the age-old boundary
This Poynton with Worth, this Poynton with Worth.

There is a future clear and strong
Where a body can belong
And as the years keep movin' on
As the years keep movin' on
Many folks will sing this song
Yes, many folks will sing this song
Of Poynton with Worth, of Poynton with Worth.
